

International Service Learning: Conceptual Frameworks and Research

Robert G. Bringle & Julie A. Hatcher, Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis,
Steven G. Jones, University of Scranton (Eds.)

In the IUPUI Series on Service Learning Research (Series editors: Robert G. Bringle & Julie A. Hatcher)

Publisher: Stylus Publishing, LLC

Table of Contents

Section I. International Service Learning

Chapter 1.1: The Context for International Service Learning: An Invisible Revolution is Underway, William M. Plater, Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis

Chapter 1.2: Visualizing International Service Learning: Overcoming Challenges through Collaboration and Insight, Hilary E. Kahn, Indiana University

Chapter 1.3: A 360 Degree View of International Service Learning, Nevin Brown, ACHIEVE, Inc.

Chapter 1.4: An Analysis of International Service Learning Design, Steven G. Jones, University of Scranton, and Kathryn Steinberg, Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis

Section II. Conceptual Frameworks for Research on International Service Learning

Chapter 2.1: A Research Agenda for International Service Learning, Humphrey Tonkin, University of Hartford

Chapter 2.2: What International Service Learning Research Can Learn from Research on Service Learning, Janet Eyler, Vanderbilt University

Chapter 2.3: What International Service Learning Research Can Learn from Research on International Learning, Richard Kiely, Cornell University

Chapter 2.4: Global Perspectives and the Re-Framing of Service Learning: New Lines of Inquiry, Nicholas Longo, Providence College, and John Saltmarsh, University of Massachusetts-Boston

Section III: Research Methods and Tools for International Service Learning

Chapter 3.1: Quantitative Approaches to Research on International Service Learning, Robert G. Bringle & Julie A. Hatcher, Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis

Chapter 3.2: Qualitative Research Methodology and ISL: Concepts, Characteristics, Methods, Approaches & Best Practices, Richard Kiely, Cornell University, and Eric Hartman, University of Pittsburgh

Chapter 3.3: Issues in Assessing International Service-Learning Experiences, Andy Furco, University of Minnesota

Section IV: Special Topics for Research on International Service Learning

Chapter 4.1: Research on and through Reflection in International Service-Learning, Brandon Whitney and Patti Clayton, NC State University

Chapter 4.2: Research on Partnerships in International Service Learning, Steven G. Jones, University of Scranton

Chapter 4.3: Ethical Issues in Research on International Service Learning, Andrea Chapdelaine, Albright College, Ana Ruiz & Judith Warchal, Alvernia College, and Carole Wells, Kutztown University

Chapter 4.4: Service Learning as Local Learning: The Importance of Context, Susan Buck Sutton, Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis

Section V: International Perspectives on Research on American International Service Learning

Chapter 5.1: An International Perspective on North American International Service Learning: Reflections Based on South African Service Learning Experiences, Mabel Erasmus, University of the Free State, South Africa

Section VI: Summary and Conclusions

Chapter 6.1: Reflections on Research on International Service Learning, Robert G. Bringle & Julie A. Hatcher, Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis, Steven G. Jones, University of Scranton